City to receive four European pupils

WSHS students globetrotting

BY SANDY FOSSON

Washington C.H. is going international this summer. Five Washington Senior High School students are traveling to various locations abroad this summer under student exchange programs while the city will receive four other students from European countries and lose one exchange student who has been residing with a local family during the past school year.

Eighteen-year-old Barbara Oswald, a 1975 graduate of Washington Senior High School, left today for Switzerland with the AFS American Field Service summer student exchange program.

THE DAUGHTER of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Oswald of 805 Briar Ave., Barbara will be living in a small industrial village, Fontainemelon, in the province of Neuchatel in the western part of the country.

The section of the country is which she will be living is basically agricultural and dotted with vineyards. The area is noted for its quiet life and the major industry is watch-making.

Her family for the summer will be Max Evard, an architect, and his wife and 14-year-old son Boris. The family became interested in the AFS summer program from advertisements on the street, Barbara said. She will be staying with the Evards from June 28 until August 28.

Barbara left today for New York and after a short orientation will fly to Brussels, Belgium Tuesday. She will attend a language camp for three days in Switzerland before joining her

TIM OGAN

French-speaking family. As a preparation for the trip, Barbara has taken three years of French in high school and was tutored prior to the trip by Mrs. John H. Roszmann of Washington C.H.

Tim Dove, son of the Rev. and Mrs. T. Mark Dove of 135 W. Circle Ave., will leave today as summer exchange student to Paraguay in South America.

A senior at Washington Senior High School, Tim will be living with the family of Enrique A. Bordon, an accountant in Asuncion, the capital city of Paraguay. The family includes six children, ranging in ages from 12 years to 22 years old. One son spent a year as an AFS student in Wisconsin.

Tim will live with the Spanish-speaking, Roman Catholic family until late August.

Washington C.H. will lose one foreign exchange student while gaining another under the AFS program for the upcoming school year.

Debbie Symmans, who has been residing with the Roger Miller family at 201 River Road since last August, will depart today for her home in New Zealand.

Debbie attended Washington Senior High School the past year with her

JAYNE MARCHANT

American sister, Denise Miller.

"As I leave Washington C.H., I take many memories of a really great year, but the friendliness of the people will always be my outstanding impression," Debbie said. "I am going home to my family with three younger brothers and will hate to leave the summer here for the winter at home. I will return to high school for six months and all the while I intend to save for a trip back to Washington C.H. to renew my friendships and memories," she added.

While Debbie is departing for the trip back New Zealand, Marie Micheline Anne Hatinguais, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hatinguais is expected to be arriving from France for a year's stay with Mr. and Mrs. John Stimpert of 10 Oxford Place.

Sixteen-year-old Marie will be a junior at Washington Senior High School, attending with the Stimpert's daughter, Kathy, a senior at the school.

Marie's home is in Saint Etienne Du Rouvray, a suburb of Rouen, France, where she lives with her three older sisters and brother. Her father is an accountant and the family attends the Roman Catholic Church.

She speaks German and English as well as her native French and plans to become an English teacher or interpreter. She enjoys playing the guitar and reading.

Three local students will be participating in the Rotary International student exchange program this summer.

Under the program, in its third year in Washington C.H., local students play host to foreign students for one month and then accompany the students back to their native countries for a month's stint abroad.

Tim Ogan, Rt. 2, Greenfield, Megan Lee, 521 E. Market St., and Jayne Marchant, 521 E. East St., traveled to Dayton early this morning to pick up their fellow students from the Scandinavian countries.

Ogan, the 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. David Ogan and a 1975 graduate of Washington Senior High School, is hosting Kim Jensen, 17, of Hadersled, Denmark.

Kim is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gunner Aagaard Jensen and has one sister. His father is a civil engineer and his mother is a commercial teacher in Denmark, where the family reside inside the city of Hadersled but often travel to their cottage on an island.

Kim will remain with the Ogan's until July 22 when Tim and the two other Washington C.H. students will travel to New York, where they will be given a half-day tour of the city before departing for Copenhagen, Denmark for a short tour of the Scandinavian countries prior to meeting their families abroad.

Megan's sister from abroad is 16-year-old Agneta Karsgaard of Gothenburg, Sweden.

Agneta is one of two children and her father is employed by the Swedish

GOP solons may be spoilers

Energy agency vote is slated

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A major bill creating a state energy agency goes to a House floor vote Wednesday with minority Republicans threatening to act as spoilers.

The bill, which creates an Ohio Energy Development and Research Agency, already has passed the Senate as an emergency measure.

But it faces tough questioning from House Republicans who contend they've been cut out of the legislative process. It must receive some Republican votes in the House to pass as an emergency measure.

If passed by the legislature, it faces an unfriendly reception by Republican Gov. James A. Rhodes, who through a spokesman has said the bill is unacceptable.

The controversy in the bill comes from two sources. One is supposed defects in the technical language of the bill giving the authority the power to issue revenue bonds, defects which Republicans say will make the bonds unmarketable.

The other controversy is over who will control the authority. Rhodes wants a board appointed by him; the legislature is passing a bill with board members appointed by the legislature.

"The structure of the board is not acceptable to us," said Thomas J. Moyer, the governor's top aide, adding that the bonding language has "very serious defects."

Moyer's words take on added weight in light of Rhodes' usual refusal to comment on pending legislation.

In the House, Rep. Sam Speck, R-95 New Concord, said promises of cooperation from Democrats in reaching a compromise version have fallen through.

Speck tried to offer 15 technical amendments dealing with bonding power while the bill was in committee. But the bill was voted upon before he could offer them.

He said indications Democrats might budge on the makeup of the board also proved fruitless, and Democrats have not talked to him about possible compromise since the bill left committee.

"I will be meeting with the Republican leadership on the bill" before the vote, Speck said.

The bill needs 66 votes to pass as an emergency measure, Democrats have 59 seats in the House, so they would need the support of seven Republican legislators to pass the bill as an emergency measure.

The proposed agency would be the coordinating body in Ohio for energy projects. It would be empowered to issue revenue bonds, build power plants and coal gasification facilities and make loans for energy development.

In other major legislative activity scheduled this week, the House plans a vote Tuesday on a proposed $731 million budget for the Transportation Department.

Legislative leaders also have pressed committee chairman to speed hearings on major legislation, including medical malpractice insurance reforms, collective bargaining for public employees, probate court revision and a major revision of drug abuse laws.

The General Assembly has completed its major task of the year, passing the state's two-year operating budget. That $10.6 billion bill was sent to Rhodes last week.

The legislature is aiming for a week's recess over the Fourth of July, then finishing its year's business by the end of July.

Greenfield boy drowns as small boat upsets

GREENFIELD — A young Greenfield area youth drowned late Saturday following a boating accident at Paint Creek Lake, near Greenfield.

Highland County Sheriff's deputies said Mark Allen McKeever, 10, of New Petersburg, drowned when the small boat in which he and four other persons were riding capsized in the lake.

It was the second Highland County drowning in less than a week. Fourteen-year-old Tex Held Bondurant, Rt. 2, Leesburg, drowned last Wednesday while wading in Lees Creek, just south of East Monroe in Highland County.

The four other persons in the boat in which the McKeever youth was riding were rescued by three men who were near the accident scene about 100 yards from a boat ramp at Rattlesnake bridge on Ohio 753.

Among those rescued were Mark McKeever's mother, Mrs. Mary Conrod, and his sister, Elsie McKeever, 6, neither of whom was injured.

Deputies said the boating accident occurred at approximately 9:30 p.m. Saturday.

The other two passengers in the small boat, Robert Penwell, 59, and David Penwell, 28, both of Leesburg, were taken to Greenfield Municipal Hospital by members of the Greenfield Area Life Squad. Only Robert Penwell was admitted for treatment of injuries received in the mishap.

The rescuers, Richard Bond, 21, and Larry Bangert, both of Greenfield, and Delwin Walker, 20, of Leesburg, called for assistance after they were unable to locate the McKeever youth.

The youth's body was discovered at 11:30 a.m. Sunday.

Search operations were ended at 2:30 a.m. Saturday, but resumed at 8 a.m. Sunday.

The body was located about 20 feet from the capsized boat by scuba divers John Rockhold and Cecil D. Seaman, of the Washington C.H. Fire Department.

Volunteers from a number of surrounding counties, including the Fayette County Rescue Squad, assisted Greenfield police officers and deputies from the Highland County Sheriff's Department in the search.

Funeral services for the youth will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Anderson-Struve Funeral Home, Greenfield. Burial will be in Greenfield Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home from 4 until 9 p.m. Tuesday.

Tot 'sees' world through beeps

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — In the blackness of being blind, Dennis Daughters is beginning to crawl now, exploring and "seeing" his world through echoes.

The 8-month-old infant "sees" objects through a sonar device worn in a kind of beanie cap.

It broadcasts silent sound waves and picks up the returning echoes which then are translated into audible sounds carried by plastic tubes to his ears. Bats see in a similar echo-sounding way.

The baby can recognize his favorite toy or a bottle and reach out accurately to grasp it in both hands.

He likes to play peek-a-boo with his mother, Melody, receiving a strong signal when he looks at her, then "turning her off" by looking to one side. It is like a sighted baby covering his eyes with his hands. Mother and child find it fun.

Blind since his premature birth, Dennis is apparently the first baby ever to be fitted with such a sonar device, says Dr. Tom Bower, a Scottish psychologist who conceived the project. If the experiment proves helpful to this child, such devices might be made available to other blind babies and children.

"When the echo device was first put on his head at age 14 weeks, his face lit up. It was like a light going on in his head. He knew there was something out there," says Mrs. Daughters, a nurse and wife of Dr. Dennis Daughters, a physician.

Dennis' sonar consists of a transducer system, about the size of a half-dollar and weighing 1½ ounces. It is placed in the middle of a headband and turns the echoes into pleasant whistling sounds, subdued enough so he can also hear voices and other sounds. It is powered by an 8-ounce, rechargeable battery that can be held by a parent on placed on the floor.

He can tell distance by a sound's pitch — the lower the pitch, the closer the object. Objects to the right or left of center produce a louder sound in that ear. Sound intensity gives clues about size, and by moving his head slightly he can define the edges of an object because the echoes diminish there.

Hard, smooth objects echo back a clear pure sound, while fuzzy surfaces sound mushy. Hence Dennis can identify his favorite toy, a rubber caterpillar having one soft side he rubs against his cheek. He can tell it from an object of similar size when both are held in front of him, Bower says.

Bower said a blind baby learns to think better if he knows where things are and how to move about. "We believe the cognitive or think process is tied up with motor processes," he explains. If blind babies receive "poor quality of information from sounds about them, they are handicapped."

Dr. and Mrs. Daughters had wanted a child for nine years and on Friday the 13th twins were born prematurely. One died and Dennis was blinded by an eye disease, retrolental fibroplasia, which was brought on by extra oxygen given to save his life.

"It was so devastating, to know he was blind," Mrs. Daughters said. "It all went so wrong. Now suddenly everything is right. My heart is so full I don't know how to begin to tell about it."

SONAR SIGHT — Melody Daughters holds her eight-month-old son, Dennis, who blinded since birth, can now "see." By broadcasting silent sounds that return as audible echoes, Dennis "sees" much like a bat does. The echoes tell him where things are and it's all done through special equipment within a kind of beanie cap worn on his head.

Ohio license plate procrastinators ignore new law

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A substantial number of Ohio car owners once again this year chose not to do today what can be put off until tomorrow.

A change in state law intended to help the public by reducing lines in the annual lastminute rush to buy plates for motor vehicles just didn't work. "The lines were longer this year than last, I think," said a woman at the Columbus Automobile Club.

But, it was the public's fault, not the law's. In recent years, all Ohio vehicle owners were required to register vehicles between March 15 and April 15. The queues on April 15 often became horrendous at stations of deputy registrars commissioned by the Ohio Bureau of Motor Vehicles. Consequently, this year the state tried a three-month staggered registration system in an effort to relieve the jam.

Passenger cars, which represent the bulk of registration, were to be registered in April and May, with owners having last names beginning with A through K to register in April, and the remainder to register in May. It didn't work, even in April.

As lines began to lengthen the last week in April, the bureau agreed to extend the deadline for all registrations to May 31, and the Department of Highway Safety recommended no enforcement of registration deadlines before then.

That only postponed the problem. Sure enough, on May 31 the last-minute lines once again were horrendous.

That evening as deputy registrars began locking the doors rather than stay open all night for procrastinators, many of whom had had 61 days to register but chose to wait until the last day, tempers flared.

Those locked out complained the deputy registrars were ignoring their responsibility to the public.

More than a few missed the extended deadline. As registrar stations opened for business the following Monday, lines of late registrants were common all across the state.

Many standing in those lines had already been charged with operating unregistered vehicles after the mid-night Saturday deadline.

"You could give 'em a year and they'd still miss the deadline," said the woman at the auto club. "Why, today we had 10 trucks registered and the penalty on that can run up to $500 for a truck."

Former government official opts for life of fishing

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer
VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass. (AP) — Three years ago Bruce Campbell was part of the Nixon administration, a $27,000-a-year government employee who had two secretaries, wore pin-stripe suits and lived in Washington's Georgetown section.

Now the 31-year-old Campbell operates a party fishing boat on this small, lush island of Martha's Vineyard which lies just off Cape Cod. He has started a scallop company and an ice company and also manages a small, local fish market.

Like hundreds of Americans, Campbell, who grew up in Milton, Mass., has chosen to change his life, to put the pressures and prestige of the executive ratrace behind him. He has grown a beard, wears dungarees to work and is giving his three-piece suits to a Vineyard boy who is going "off-island" to college in the fall.

"I'm working harder and enjoying it more," Campbell said as he downed an early morning breakfast. "The quality of life here is so much better. I don't have to lock the door. Everyone knows you."

Lured by the sound of the fog horn and the smell of the sea, Campbell says he is a happier man, that his marriage has improved, that his kids have a nice place to live. He has a two-story colonial house he built on two acres of land in a wooded section of West Chop, near Vineyard Haven — and though the payments are around $500 a month, he said he has never missed one.

"The first year we had $300 worth of business and $1,200 in debts," he said, rolling his "Rs" softly as New Englanders tend to do. "The next year we had $11,000 in business and $7,000 in debts. Last year we had $22,000 in business and $3,000 debts."

By listening to Campbell, a handsome, healthy looking man who never graduated from college, one can understand why he left Washington's pressure-cooker atmosphere to make a new start on the Vineyard.

At first, the life seemed a little slow and he missed Washington, Campbell said. "Our first year here we got the Washington Post. I missed the activity for awhile, the hustle and bustle. But it fades. It slowly recedes. Now I don't miss it at all. There are lots of bright people here. You make what you want of it."

His conversation drifts back to the days at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare where he said his job in the public affairs office was "to facilitate the Nixon message." He also worked at the Environmental Protection Agency where he had the bureaucratic title of executive assistant to the assistant administrator for air and water programs.

When President Richard M. Nixon's re-election committee was formed, he tried to get a staff job there. But no offer came. "I wasn't liked by too many people because I wouldn't do things through channels," Campbell said, adding that he's happy now that he was rejected.

If your car smells musty after a rain, find the leaks and repair them. A good way to find the leaks is to drive the automobile through an automatic car wash because the high-powered spray is almost guaranteed to seep through any leaks.

Letters to the editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD

Should anyone desire to contact their representatives on some very important issues, permit me to make some suggestions.

The Land Use Planning Act would permit the federal bureaucrats to seize our land without paying for it. It would completely override the Fifth Amendment which assures against deprivation of property without due process of law and just compensation. Rep Symms (R-Idaho) warned that such a law would "eventually result in the demise of private property rights and will increase federal encroachment on state sovereignty." Former Rep Rarick (D-La) called land use control an "alien concept" and urged Congress to reject it. If you wish to write Senators Taft and Glenn and Rep Harsha, urge them to oppose H.R.3510 and S. 984.

Did you know there is concerted effort in the U.S. Senate to relinquish our control of the Panama Canal to Panama? Since Panama is ruled by a pro-communist regime, who do you suppose would end up really controlling the canal? Is this what they mean by detente? The Senate, in past years has rejected this proposal and a substantial number have signed a resolution stating their continuing opposition. They need to know of our support of their stand. Already important concessions have been made to Panama in the areas of fire and police protection. If these two functions were to be turned over to the enemy, what would our position then be? This whole matter would be handled by treaty and the U.S. Senate is the ratifying body. Let Taft and Glenn know of your views. Did you know the provisions of our Constitution may be overridden by treaties?

Rep Holt (R-Md.) has introduced H.R. 2818 which prohibits assigning both students and teachers on racial or similar grounds. Forced bussing is an insult to both blacks and whites. Write Taft, Glenn and Harsha telling them of your views on forced bussing in general and H.R. 2818 in particular.

Make no mistake about all of this — forced bussing (breakdown of the neighborhood school concept); Federal Land use Bill (breakdown of the concept of private ownership of property); diminution of the effectiveness of the Church; dilution and weakening our belief in God; weakening of the family as a basic tenet of our social system; use of federal monies as a means for the government to inject itself into our educational system — is nothing more than an effort to break down the local control of our institutions. This inevitably will lead to regional government (I'm thinking in a much larger sense than Gilligan's planning areas) then to a form of centralized Federal Government and eventually to a one world government. The United Nations is the framework for such a world government. We should remove ourselves from the U.N. immediately and remove them from our shores.

J. Herbert Perrill

P.S. A letter to your senator or representative should be (a) no longer than necessary, (b) courteous, (c) to the point and (d) in your own handwriting if you so desire.

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

I am writing in regards to the wonderful job the Ladies Garden Club of Washington C.H. has done on the new Veterans Memorial on the Fayette County Courthouse lawn.

To say they did a very good job would be putting it very mildly. It is through people like that who make one realize that compassion for his fellowman is not a thing of the past.

Honoring those who gave their lives makes those who are still among the living take stock of themselves and say that is still a lot of patriotism left in this country.

I do believe that people are basically patriotic but it takes someone else to bring it out just like these ladies did. Again ladies if a big round of thanks is payment enough for a job well-done, from the bottom of my heart — thanks.

Capital shortage fears rise

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Everyone from the man of the house to the man in the White House is concerned today about the probability of a capital shortage—a shortage of funds to finance families, businesses, governments.

Heads of households wonder how they'll ever be able to save enough to buy a new refrigerator, car or probably even a new house, since prices seem to move in step or just ahead of pay increases.

At the White House, the concern is about the big federal deficits that must be financed in the marketplace. There's no question about the government getting its money. Uncle Sam is our most powerful citizen.

But this is the very problem for private enterprise. Will it get crowded out? Will there be enough left for business to share in the wealth without forcing a return of those debilitatingly high interest rates?

Almost every level of business is worried about either a shortage of capital or rising interest rates.

At the very bottom, emerging businesses complain that almost nobody seems to be interested in lending them money, no matter what the rate. The new-issues market in stocks is barely alive. Lenders are reluctant.

Typically, the beginning businessman hears something like this when he goes to borrow:

"We think you have a great idea, Jones, but you see, we just can't help you, much as we'd like too. Our minimum commitment is $1 million and you want only $25,000. It would cost us too much to lend that small amount."

The suggestion that follows is to try to scrape up a few thousand dollars from family and friends, the futility of which is underscored by the inability of family and friends to scrape up enough for themselves.

There is a level of large business just below the top tier that is probably more alarmed about raising capital than any other group, and it has organized to tell the investing world about it.

The Committee of Publicly Owned Companies is angry about what it feels is a concentration of investment interest in a block of the top 50 or 100 stocks, and an ignorance of the opportunities to invest in their concerns.

They have a point. Some of the big brokers and institutions—bank trusts, insurers, mutual and pension funds—have a tendency to concentrate their interest and effort in only the very deepest blue of the very biggest blue chips—the billion dollar companies.

As a result, equally good investments in companies whose sales run from $25 million to $500 million or so are often ignored. Their share prices remain depressed. They trade little. They attract little interest or money.

Israeli stand stays same

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Israel's ambassador to the United States Sunday reiterated his country's position that a peace settlement in the Middle East is contingent on an Arab promise to end their state of "belligerency."

Simcha Dinitz said if such a promise were made, Israel would agree to give up territory it captured during wars with Arab countries.

The ambassador noted that there are "some signs that after a quarter of a century of war and hostility, Egypt is prepared to test another road. We don't know how constant that road will be or how stable that regime will be."

Dinitz gave his views before attending a dinner here honoring Jackie Presser, Cleveland Teamster leader, for his work in selling Israeli bonds.

The diplomat also said that America's recent experience in the Far East has made the U.S. "more choosy but no less committed" in support of its allies.

When Owens Lake bed, located near Death Valley National Monument, was full, the water contained so much borax and soda that neither fish nor mammal could live there.

Golf video big business

By STANLEY JOHNSON

Associated Press Writer

MANHASSET, N.Y. (AP) — Two women golfers have parlayed their hobby into a booming business based on the belief that even a duffer likes to see himself on television — and doesn't mind paying the bill.

Kay Delaney and Sue Shea of Scarsdale, N.Y., started putting other players on video tape between their own rounds at the Scarsdale Golf Club last summer. For $300 or $400, they now show instant replays of the instant stars at clubs or private parties.

"The worse they played, the better they loved the film," said Kay. "And the biggest hit was hearing those wild remarks recorded as they missed strokes. The worse the language the better the show."

The two women started out when their husbands gave them TV equipment for Christmas. The golf shots started as a gag, but spurted into big business.

"We're not in the 500 biggest businesses yet," the two said almost simultaneously of their six-figure turnover. "But we're getting there." They have an office in this Long Island golfing town, 15 female employees and new equipment costing $4,000. They call themselves Videoway Inc.

"We're golf videos, not widows," they both are fond of saying.

Sue operates the camera and Kay does interviews.

The video tape is shown through a TV set to which an instant playback gadget is attached. Most showings are at club parties or at homes.

Although they now fly around the country — from Phoenix to Southampton — the business still has its homelike touch: They carry their equipment in a grocery cart.

2 men sought in assault case

ASHLAND, Ohio (AP) — An Ohio Highway Patrol helicopter plus local police and sheriff's deputies were searching Sunday for two of five men who allegedly took part in an assault on an Ashland County deputy early Sunday.

Ashland County sheriff's deputies said the incident occurred on Ohio 97 near the Ashland-Richland County line in the Mohican State Park area.

Deputy John Giscion reportedly stopped a car for littering violation. An argument followed and Giscion allegedly was attacked and had his gun taken, a spokesman said.

The deputy was in satisfactory condition in Mansfield General Hospital, a hospital spokesman said.

Deputies were questioning three of the five men reportedly involved and were seeking the remaining two, who fled on foot.

Saturday's Cryptoquote: AN OPTIMIST IS A MAN WHO SAYS HE'S GOING TO WATCH THE FIRST FIFTEEN MINUTES OF THE LATE LATE SHOW. — LARRY PRENTISS

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Booze hater wants to separate the wet from the dry

DEAR ABBY: You besmirched the image of pigs and hogs when you wrote: "The person who hogs the conversation is no less a pig than the person who comes to the table and eats all the food."

Abby, you infer that pigs and hogs are greedy. They are not! If these little four-footed creatures were fed balanced rations, they would not overeat! That point has been proven through research at many universities.

It's fact that most affluent people eat themselves out of shape. So why downgrade pigs and hogs when people, who are supposed to be more intelligent than pigs, are guilty of the same thing?

If you want to emphasize greediness in people, instead of calling them "hogish," why not say "peopl-ish"?

G.B. PHILLIPS: HEADLAND, ALA.

DEAR MRR.P.: I plead guilty to perpetuating the prejudicial notion that pigs and hogs are greedy. And I hope that every pig and hog who reads this will forgive me.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for telling "Made My Plans" that you, too, carry a card stating that your eyes and kidneys shall be donated immediately on your demise.

If in death, a person can give life of improve life of another, his existence was all the more valuable.

Visiting a cemetery may help purge the living of their own guilt. But when I am gone, I plan to spare my family those dreary trips to the cemetery to weep over my decaying remains.

Let them remember me by keeping in touch with their new friends who now see through my corneas and live an active life with my kidneys.

Life doesn't end with death. And yes, you may use my real name.

SANDRA KLORES, N.Y.C.

DEAR SANDRA: God is blessing you now.

DEAR ABBY: I am a smoker. I know all the hazards, but I enjoy smoking and will not give it up. I resent all the reformed smokers who have quit for whatever reason and preach to me to quit smoking.

I respect all the "No Smoking" signs. I do not smoke while I am in an automobile with others. I smoke in my office, my home, or with friends.

I do not drink. I hate heavy drinkers and detest drunks, yet I am constantly exposed to drunks. On a long plane ride, for instance, I sat next to a woman who drank all the way. She was so loaded when we landed that she had to be helped from the plane.

Bars, restaurants, theaters, etc., serve liquor, but they want to put up "No Smoking" signs.

I protest! I would like to see every eating place with a "No Smoking" sign stop serving drinks and beer so I won't have to be around drunks. Also, airlines should have a separate section for drinkers, just as they do for smokers.

I am not asking people to stop drinking; I'm just asking that the drinkers drink with each other and leave us sober people alone.

MRS. T.S.
DEAR MRS. T.S.: You make a valid point. But while obnoxious drunks are no pleasure to encounter, they do no violence to your lungs and the environment. Smokers do.

Today In History

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, June 23, the 174th day of 1975. There are 191 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1683, William Penn signed a friendship treaty with Indians in the Pennsylvania region. The agreement was faithfully kept by both sides for more than 60 years.

On this date:
In 1713, Charleston, S.C., was incorporated.

In 1722, England's queen ordered the French people in Nova Scotia to take an oath of allegiance to her government within one year or leave.

Also in 1967, the U.S. Senate voted to censure Democratic Sen. Thomas Dodd of Connecticut for allegedly using campaign funds for his personal benefit.

Ten years ago: Democratic Senator Robert Kennedy of New York urged President Lyndon Johnson to give top priority to working out a treaty that would halt the spread of nuclear weapons.

Five years ago: In Tokyo, Japanese students armed with firebombs and bamboo sticks clashed with police in a huge demonstration against continuing the U.S.-Japan security pact.

One year ago: Disengagement in the Mideast moved ahead as Israel withdrew from the last remaining section of land captured from Syria in the October War.

Today's birthdays: Former Secretary of State William Rogers is 62. Former baseball star Don Drysdale is 39. Actor and Director Bob Fosse is 48.
Thought for today: Better to wear out than to rust out — Richard Cumberland, English philosopher, 1631-1718.

Bicentennial footnote: It was 200 years ago today that George Washington left Philadelphia for the Boston area to take command of American military forces early in the Revolutionary war.

"Gee, aren't you going to leave ANYTHING for posterity?"

Get rich chances at casinos poor, professor says

By ROBERT MURPHY
Associated Press Writer
RENO, Nev. (AP) — How good are your chances of actually striking it rich in the casinos? Not very, says Bill Eadington.

Eadington, a professor of economics at the University of Nevada here, recently compiled some statistics on gambling.

"I came to Nevada seven years ago, and saw that a really good statistical look hadn't been taken at the state's leading industry—gambling," he said. "So I decided to do one."

Among his findings: for every $100 bet playing roulette over a prolonged period, you'll probably lose at least $5.50. For the same amount bet in Keno, you'll lose $25.

You can compile statistics on every aspect of gambling. The most widely used is the "expected loss" factor, a term which indicates how much money will be lost on every bet made.

Craps is the best game to play, according to this type of rating, says Eadington.

The expected loss on this game is 1.5 per cent, meaning that for every $100 bet, the player's loss will be around $1.50, Eadington claims.

Baccarat has the next lowest expected loss figure, with 2.5 per cent. Blackjack, or 21, is hard to describe in this type of statistical term because the quality of the player must be considered.

Eadington says with a good player, the expected loss could be as low as 1 or 2 per cent. "A bad player who does everything wrong could have a loss factor of 10 per cent," he said.

The expected loss on slot machines ranges from 5 to 25 per cent, depending on how the casinos have the machines set for payback, Eadington said.

On the surface, these "expected loss" percentages don't look too bad, but combined with the "grind factor" players don't really have much of a chance.

Eadington explained the "grind factor" this way:

"If a gambler just plays for an evening or a weekend, he has a good chance of ending up ahead for that period. But if he stays in the casino for a prolonged period of time, eventually the house advantage will just grind him away."

With the deck stacked so much against the player, it would seem that business would be going down, but the gaming industry here is growing.

The industry's gross taxable revenues topped the $1 billion mark in 1974, a 14 per cent increase over 1973's $878 million.

Asked if he gambled, Eadington said: "Not very much. I play some very cheap blackjack if I can find it."

North Canton crash kills power

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Some 1,300 residents of North Canton were without power early Sunday after a hit-skip motorist rammed into a power pole, North Canton police said.

Power was restored to the area about mid morning, an Ohio Power Co. spokesman said.

Throw-away beer statistics fuel pending anti-litter laws

By TOM DIEMER
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—You could fill 29,348 tractor trailers with all the throw-away beer cans and bottles sold in Ohio last year.

If you lined the 40-foot semis up end-to-end, they would stretch across the state for 222 miles.

That doesn't include soda pop — just beer.

The litter figures were offered at a House Energy and Environment Committee hearing on two antilitter bills now pending before the 111th General Assembly.

One proposed by Rep. Virginia Aveni, D-17 Cleveland, would force a 5-cent deposit on nonreturnable containers to discourage littering, and would also outlaw snap-tabs on cans. Another by Rep. Arthur Brooks, D-14 Cleveland Heights, would tax can and bottle manufacturers "for the purpose of encouraging recycling and resource recovery."

The litter statistics came to the House committee considering the two bills from an apparently reliable, but rather unlikely, source — a beer-distributor whose wife runs a suburban Columbus carryout.

S. J. Fabyan told the committee 60 million of the 80 million cases sold at retail in Ohio in 1974 were throw-away bottles or cans, mostly the latter. Dealers sell 25 to 50 per cent more soft drinks than beer.

Fabyan said Ohio markets carry a much larger percentage of returnable bottles than in the east. The percentage of returnables in total sales in the state's four largest cities range from 60 per cent in Cleveland to 75 per cent in Columbus, Fabyan said.

Brewers and wholesale distributors enjoy a larger profit margin on returnables, but increased production would hike costs for labor, transporting and handling, Fabyan said.

"We have not taken advantage of the technology that surely would be forthcoming if returnables were sold in great quantity," he told the state representatives.

"The distributor needs to install computers, establish better handling procedures, presell and force the labor unions to negotiate an honest day's pay for an honest day's work."

The effect of the two bills before the committee in theory would be to persuade manufacturers, brewers, distributors and retailers that Fabyan has some points, and that maybe returnable bottles would be a good investment.

Similar legislation died in committee last year. Formidable opposition is again lined up, including the Ohio Manufacturers Association, the Chamber of Commerce and representatives of the beer and soft drink industries.

Critics focus criticism on costs and employment, which they say would be affected.

Three states — Oregon, Vermont and South Dakota — have laws requiring deposits on nonreturnables. A one-year study in Oregon found $2.49 million lost to consumers in unreclaimed deposits.

Thirty-nine states, including Ohio, and the federal government are considering legislation to restrict throwaways. Two neighboring states, West Virginia and Indiana, have defeated bottle bills.

Roper Corp. shuts division office

NEWARK, Ohio (AP) — Roper Corp., plagued with financial woes, is shutting down its divisional headquarters here, according to Roper President C. M. Hoover.

Hoover said the decision to shut down was a result of a combination of the fluctuating economy, stiffer market competition and rising production cost.

Closing effects some 500 plant and 154 office personnel in Newark, he said. Newark's production will be spread among other 20 existing plants in the country.

Roper makes rotary mowers and aluminum gas and electric patio grills.

Marriage vows exchanged in St. Colman Catholic Church

St. Colman Catholic Church was the setting for the Saturday wedding of Miss Melissa Lou Mark and James David Garland. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Gene Sutton Mark of 704 Miami Trace Rd., and Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Garland of 362 Bunker Hill-Glendon Rd.

The Rev. Fr. James H. Garland of Cincinnati, uncle of the bridegroom, performed the double ring candlelight ceremony at 1:30 p.m. The church altar was adorned with white gladioli, yellow and white killian daisies and palms.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white gown of tiered Chantilly lace fashioned with long sleeves and ruffled cuffs. The tiers of the skirt were edged with crystal beads. A back panel of the ruffled lace extended into a chapel train and her veil, a mantilla of silk illusion, was edged in m attaching lace. She carried an heirloom white prayerbook, which had been handed down through the family from her great-great-grandmother, the late Mrs. Stephen Cole. The prayerbook was topped with a solitaire bouquet of white orchids, stephanotis, baby's breath and ivy.

The bridal procession included two sisters of the bridegroom, Miss Stephanie Garland, junior bridesmaid, and Mrs. Larry J. Martin, matron of honor, and two sisters-in-law of the bride, Mrs. Alan J. Mark and Mrs. David G. Mark, bride's matrons. Each wore a gown of dotted Swiss styled with fitted bodice, square neckline, and tiered skirt combined with lace-two in pale yellow and two in mint green. Crowns of yellow and white daisies tied with maize and green picot streamers formed the headdress, the flowers and colors duplicated in their Early American bouquets.

Mrs. Mark chose for her daughter's wedding a sleeveless polyester double knit gown with full-length matching chiffon coat. Her purse corsage was of yellow sweetheart roses. The bridegroom's mother wore an afternoon gown of aqua knit sprigged with pastel flower print and a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses.

Seating the wedding guests were the couples' brothers, William Mark, Nicholas, Christopher and Joseph Garland, with the groom's brother-in-law, Lt. Larry J. Martin of Wichita Falls, Tex., serving as best man.

Among the relatives and friends witnessing the marriage ceremony were the bride's great-grandmother, Mrs. Clarence Orihood, and the other grandmothers, Mrs. Dewey Toops, Mrs. Harold Mark and Mrs. Leo Garland, each of whom wore a corsage of white daisies.

A reception at the Mark country home followed. The yellow and green color scheme prevailed in floral decorations throughout the home and also at the bride's table. A three-tiered wedding cake and lighted silver candelabra with arrangements of yellow and white daisies, baby's breath and ivy centered the table. A second table in the dining room held a silver punch bowl encircled with daisies. Hostesses for the reception were Mrs. Jack Evans, Mrs. William E. Hilliard, Mrs. Clifford Howard, Miss Barbara Jo Reeves, Mrs. Benjamin Rosen, Mrs. Margaret Perrill and Mrs. William E. Williams. Miss Shannon Evans, cousin of the bride, presided at the guest book.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Garland left during late afternoon for a short wedding trip and upon their return will reside at 97 Miami Trace Rd. For traveling, the bride chose an apricot polyester knit dress with cap sleeves extending into a capelet and a corsage of white roses and white accessories.

Both are graduates of Miami Trace High School, Mr. Garland in the Class of 1970, and the bride in the Class of 1975.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Garland were hosts at the Terrace Lounge Friday night for a dinner for the bridal party following rehearsal.

2 women again give communion

OVERLIN, Ohio (AP)—Two women continued to make themselves what one of them called "fools for Christ," concelebrating communion Sunday in the face of Episcopal Church action against the male priest who invited them.

The Revs. Alison Cheek of Annadale, Va., and Carter Heyward of New York City conducted what was the eighth such service by one or both of them in Christ's Episcopal Church.

The decision to go ahead came Saturday, one day after the 30-year-old pastor of the church, the Rev. L. Peter Beebe, was found guilty of breaking his priestly vows and church laws by having invited them for the first service, last Dec. 8.

The court of five fellow priests recommended that the Rt. Rev. John H. Burt, bishop of the church's Ohio Diocese, admonish the minister to stop the practice. If the Rev. Mr. Beebe disobeyed that "godly admonition" as he had the earlier one, the court recommended that he be suspended from the priesthood.

Moments after the verdict, the minister told newsmen he would continue as before. It was a matter of conscience, he said. Sunday he said he had told Bishop Burt both orally and in writing that "this is going to continue on."

Warner named chairman of joint ditch board

Fayette County Board of Commissioners chairman Ray Warner has been elected to serve as chairman of the joint board of commissioners from Clinton, Madison, Greene and Fayette counties during a recent organizational meeting on the petitioned Rattlesnake Ditch improvement project.

The project, which was petitioned in late May by John A. Peterson, Marion Waddle and Charles Ellis of Fayette County, seeks to straighten, deepen, widen, tile, fill and perform other improvements in accordance with the Ohio Revised Code to the ditch, measuring approximately 43 miles along Rattlesnake Creek.

Warner stated the project is the largest ditch improvement to be petitioned in the state. The location of the ditch, beginning at the Greenfield-Sabina Road between Green and Perry Townships in Fayette County northwest of the junction of Rattlesnake Creek with Paint Creek, extending north and ending at Ohio 323 in Madison County, involves several hundred landowners with interest in the proposed Rattlesnake Creek Watershed area improvement.

Janet Pope, clerk of the local board of commissioners, was named as clerk for the joint county board and J. Herbert Perrill, a member of the Fayette County commission, was disqualified as a participant on the joint board because he is a property owner within the Rattlesnake Watershed area.

Clifford Hughes, a former county commissioner and member of the Fayette County Board of Health Department board of trustees, was appointed by Fayette County Common Pleas Court Judge Evelyn W. Coffman to replace Perrill on the joint board.

Viewing of the proposed ditch project will be conducted at 9:30 a.m. July 9 beginning at the Greenfield-Sabina Road bridge, just east of Buena Vista. The first hearing on the project will be held at 1:30 p.m. Aug. 21 in the Mahan Building on the Fayette County Fairgrounds.

The commissioners were also to travel to view the petitioned Cornell-Stoughton joint county ditch project at 2 p.m. today with members of the Madison County Board of Commissioners.

KSU testimony tells of taunts

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A former student who taunted Ohio National Guardsmen with a black flag takes the witness stand again today as victims of the 1970 Kent State University shootings press claims for $46 million in damages.

Alan Canfora, one of nine students wounded in a clash with guardsmen May 4, 1970, began his testimony Thursday, just before court recessed for the weekend.

In an apparent effort to head off a probable attack on cross examination, Canfora admitted at the beginning of his testimony that he had pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana in December 1970. He said he served two years probation.

Earlier Thursday, it was learned the 26-year-old Barborton resident had been the roommate of another student injured in the 13-second volley from guard rifles firing down a campus slope.

The roommate, Thomas Grace, 25, of Syracuse, N.Y., told defense lawyers it was purely coincidence that he and Canfora both were shot that sunny spring afternoon.

The wounded and parents of four students killed in the shooting are seeking the damages from Gov. James Rhodes, three ex-state officials and 39 present and former guardsmen.

Rhodes ordered the guard to the campus after a weekend of rioting that culminated in the burning of the Reserve Officers Training Corps building.

Grace testified he knew two of the students who were killed, Sandra Scheuer of Youngstown and Jeffrey Miller of Plainview, N.Y. But he denied a defense attorney's suggestion the two had met the roommates at their apartment and made the type of flag Canfora can be seen waving in photos.

Grace was followed on the stand by James Russell, another of the wounded who took exception to guardsmen's claims the gunfire was a response to a surge of protestors at the peak of crowd noise.

The 28-year-old St. Petersburg, Fla., resident said he and other students he saw were trying to get out of the troops' way as they retraced their steps up the hill.

He said he, like Grace and Canfora, were more than 150 feet from the guardsmen when hit by steel-jacketed bullets. Russell was wounded twice, once in the forehead and once in the right thigh. Grace took a bullet in the left ankle and lost part of his foot.

Russell said he saw students moving toward Taylor Hall, a classroom building at the top of the hill, near where guardsmen suddenly turned and open fire.

"I did not see students rushing the National Guard," he said. "Most of the chanting had stopped."

Ford honors 3 Russians

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is honoring two Russian airmen and the son of a third for the first flight over the North Pole from Europe to the United States.

They are Aleksander V. Belyakov, 60, who was co-pilot, and Georgi F. Baidukov, 78, who was navigator on the historic flight in 1937, and Igor V. Chkalov, son of the late Valery Chkalov, the chief pilot.

They made the 5,288-mile flight from Europe to Vancouver, Wash. Their goal was Oakland, Calif., but they headed for Portland, Ore., when they were running short of fuel.

But as the Russian plane, a 110-foot ANT-25, broke through the clouds at Portland, the crew saw a huge crowd waiting. Fearing for the safety of their plane in a large souvenir-hunting crowd, they then headed for Vancouver.

Last Friday, the three Russians attended a ceremony in Vancouver commemorating the 38th anniversary of the flight. Ford asked them to visit him in the White House so that he could personally honor them.

Other Ford appointments today include a meeting with Hans Friderichs, West German minister of economics, and a session to discuss means of creating new jobs with Labor Secretary John T. Dunlop and AFL-CIO President George Meany.

President and Mrs. Ford tonight will attend the Metropolitan Opera's production of La Boheme at Wolf Trap Farm in suburban Virginia.

Find no military intelligence files

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Department officials said today that they have found no evidence that military intelligence has retained computerized files on civilians or that the government has created a vast electronic network containing information on millions of Americans.

"We in the Department of Defense are not in and do not intend to get into the business of surveilling American citizens who have no affiliation with the department," D. O. Cooke, deputy assistant secretary of Defense for administration, told a joint Senate subcommittee hearing.

Cooke was responding to allegations that military intelligence had retained civil disturbance files ordered destroyed in 1970 and 1971 and that the Defense Department was a key participant in a project designed to interconnect government data banks.

CIA activities said directed from 'top'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater said today that the Central Intelligence Agency "took orders from the top" in carrying out illegal activities.

The Arizona Republican, a member of the Senate Intelligence Committee, said the panel's investigation will show the CIA did not want to do some of the things it did but felt obliged to follow orders.

Jobless rate has perked

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's jobless rate appears to have peaked and should begin receding by the end of the summer, says Chairman Alan Greenspan of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Greenspan said that, for all practical purposes, the recession is over.

Appearing on CBS' "Face the Nation," Greenspan said Sunday that he feels unemployment is cresting at near the announced May level of 9.2 per cent.

It will stay at about that level through the summer, but then there should be a marked decline, Greenspan said. By next January, the rate should fall to about 8.5 per cent and then decline during 1976 to 7.5 or 7.25 per cent, he said.

The recession, defined as a period of declining economic activity, is "pretty much spent," Greenspan said.

He predicted a "fairly strong" upswing in the economy but said he feels this recovery could still be threatened by excessive federal spending and large budget deficits.

Over-all, the economy is in slightly better condition at the present time than he had anticipated, with inflation reduced to about half of what it was a year ago, Greenspan said.

But, taking a less optimistic view, international economist Friedrich Von Hayek said a lasting cure for inflation would require another year of high unemployment.

Von Hayek, who appeared on NBC's "Meet the Press," said that steady inflation was the primary cause of the recession, drawing labor into jobs that could only be maintained by more inflation.

If the nation is to achieve economic stability, it may have to endure unemployment rates reaching as high as 13 or 14 per cent, the economist said.

Agricultural development promoted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Huge oil revenues in the Mideast have triggered massive agricultural development plans in newly rich countries but those nations still are expected to draw heavily on U.S. farm products, particularly soybeans, an Agriculture Department report said today.

Among the potentially larger markets for U.S. oilseed products are Iran, Lebanon, Iraq, Syria and Saudi Arabia, the report said. It was published by the department's Foreign Agricultural Service in a weekly issue of "Foreign Agriculture."

The report was based on observations by Clarence Goldsborough of the USDA and Howard Akers, representing the American Soybean Association, who visited the Mideast and North Africa earlier this year to assess the market potential for U.S. soybeans.

"Countries here are aiming for large increases in meat production, particularly poultry meat, which of course enhances demand for feed ingredients like soybean meal," the report said.

"They are looking at soy protein as a means of enriching school lunches and other feeding programs," it said. "And they are in need of more vegetable oil." In Iran, for example, oil revenues soared to $18.5 billion last year from $2.4 billion in 1972. The government there is spending huge amounts to develop Iranian agriculture.

"For the near future, however, results of these efforts are likely to be eclipsed by growth in soybean imports as the country's vegetable oil needs continue to soar and stress is placed on improving the protein content of diets," the report said.

The authors warned that Iran is seeking future sources of dependable oilseed supplies and that it has sent teams to the United States and Brazil to look at possibilities of negotiating longterm commitments.

Disputes hampering Congressional plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate dispute over last November's New Hampshire Senate race continues this week while the House tries to override President Ford's expected veto of a housing bill.

The Senate votes Tuesday on whether to limit debate on the New Hampshire election. The dispute threatens to shorten or eliminate a 10-day July 4 recess scheduled to start at the end of the week.

House leaders, meanwhile, have scheduled an effort Wednesday to override the expected housing-bill veto in the latest test of a presidential-congressional battle that Ford has dominated so far.

In three previous tests, the House has failed to override vetoes of bills dealing with farm matters, jobs and strip mining.

Ford is expected to veto the housing bill today or Tuesday on the ground it is too costly and would hinder the administration's efforts to keep the budget deficit at $60 billion. Supporters of the measure claim it would spur housing construction and prevent foreclosures by offering mortgage interest subsidies to middle-income home buyers and loans of $250 a month to jobless home owners who face foreclosures.

Several other measures, meanwhile, must be passed by June 30, including the measure increasing the legal limit on the national debt to $577 billion. House action is scheduled Tuesday.

Congress has already sent to the White House a bill providing continuing funds for federal agencies for the new fiscal year starting July 1. None of the regular appropriation bills has been passed.

However, the stopgap funding measure includes some of the job-creating programs contained in a $5.3 billion measure that Ford vetoed earlier, raising a question as to whether he will accept this bill.

Senate action on the debt ceiling and any other "must" bills that come along will have to be sandwiched in around the continuing New Hampshire debate.

In seeking to determine whether Republican Louis C. Wyman or Democrat John A. Durkin won the Nov. 5 election, the Senate Rules Committee has asked the full Senate to decide 35 questions on which it deadlocked.

However, the eight days of debate so far have seen the Senate's Republican minority refuse to agree to time limitations while pushing proposals to expand the committee's inquiry.

Ruppert mentally ill, testimony shows

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — Two psychiatrists and a psychologist have testified that James Ruppert, 41, of Hamilton, was suffering from a serious mental illness and the defense attorneys today are expected to continue to probe his mental history. Ruppert is accused of killing 11 members of his family Easter Sunday.

Dr. Donald W. Ormiston testified Friday that he interviewed Ruppert the day after the shooting incident and asked him: "What makes you unique?" "I'm a loner," replied Ruppert who admitted he felt "complete hopelessness at being in jail."

The three physicians testified that Ruppert was obsessed with the idea there was a conspiracy against him led by his mother and brother in concert with the FBI.

Ormiston said Ruppert described his mother as critical and domineering, "always black-balling me all of my life." Ruppert related incidents in which his mother had beaten him with a stick or with a rubber hose, and he was convinced that she always knew what he was doing.

Ormiston, Dr. Lester Grinspoon, of the Harvard Medical School, and Dr. Howard Sokolov, a consultant for the Butler County Forensic Center, testified that Ruppert's psychotic condition surfaced when he made an obscene phone call after a librarian kidded him about spending so much time in the library.

"This psychosis developed and developed until March 30 when all his suppressed feelings exploded," explained defense attorney H.J. Bressler in his opening argument. "He was unable to control his own being as a result of the mental disease at the time he pulled the trigger and caused the death of the family and children who were so dear to him."

It was Ruppert's belief that his brother was conspiring against him that triggered the incident at his mother's home when his mother, brother, sister-in-law and eight nieces and nephews were killed, Dr. Grinspoon said.

The doctors testified that Ruppert was convinced that his brother had sabotaged his automobile and on the day of the incident, he was trying to get out of the house because he was uncomfortable in the presence of his mother and brother.

Ruppert told the doctors that as he passed through the kitchen with his guns on his way to go target shooting, Leonard Ruppert gave him a "mocking smile" and said "How's your Volkswagen?"

"There occurred a rage reaction in which there was so much pent up emotion and unreal charged thinking that it was consistent with an explosion of psychotic rage," Sokolov said.

The prosecution has contended that Ruppert's plea of innocent by reason of insanity was part of a plan to gain the $300,000 family inheritance which would be left by his mother and brother.

Two Jaycee officers attend workshop, training session

Two members of the Washington C.H. Jaycee chapter have returned from an Ohio Jaycee officers' workshop and training session at Dennison University in Granville. Representing the Washington C.H. Jaycees were Clem Edwards, president, and Larry Cruea, secretary-treasurer.

The purpose of the meeting was to better prepare the newly-elected officers to carry out their respective functions during the upcoming year. The format included sessions on goal setting, personal motivation, communication and leadership. Informal sessions were held for the exchanging ideas and solving common problems.

Glenn Willey of Findlay, the newly-elected Jaycee president, and former president E. Larry Mohls, were featured speakers during the two-day workshop.

Local projects planned by the Jaycees this year include presentation of a fireworks display July 4th, sponsoring of the special olympics for handicapped children and participation in the Junior Achievement program.

Men between the ages of 18 and 35 who are interested in joining the Jaycee organization are urged to contact Dale Butler 335-5424.

Health department issues tips for safe swimming practices

As temperatures continue to climb, Fayette County residents are again enjoying the pleasures of the outdoors, and swimming is a primary activity for many.

Unfortunately, swimming season is also drowning season, and each year 200 Ohioans lose their lives in drowning accidents at home, at the beach, in abandoned quarries, ponds and pools.

Last year, the largest number of drowning victims were between the ages of 15 and 24, and early estimates indicate that this season may prove just as deadly to the same group.

Dr. William E. Covert, Fayette County health commissioner, reminds area residents that many of these deaths can be prevented by following safe swimming practices. Some of these important practices are:

—Learn to swim. If you are a non-swimmer at least learn the basic technique of staying afloat;

—Never swim alone;

—Never leave a small child alone near the water;

—Swim only in supervised areas; avoid quarries and ponds;

—If you are a non-swimmer, do not use floating devices to carry you into water deeper than chest level;

—Know your own limits, and do not swim to exhaustion;

—Learn water-rescue technique, and if at all possible extend an object to the victim which can keep him afloat without swimming yourself. A long pole, a rope or anything that floats can be used for this purpose; and —Learn mouth-to-mouth resuscitation which is effective for drowning victims of all ages.

MTHS student attending bicentennial conference

ATHENS — Talented high school students from throughout the state are attending a six-day conference at Ohio University on "The American Revolution: Images and Realities." They include Miss Elaine Puckett, 2493

Stanton-Sugar Grove Rd., a Miami Trace High School student.

The university's goal in sponsoring the Conference July 20-25 is to expose a select group of young Ohioans to the variety of interpretations of the war for independence. With such preparation, the 77 students will be able to make significant contributions to their high school's bicentennial celebrations in the 1975-76 school year.

The approach of the conference will be multi-media with written material supplemented by lectures, dinner talks, slide presentations, and documentary and commercially-made movies depicting the revolutionary era.

The students also will visit the site of the Battle of Point Pleasant and will tour locations in Marietta associated with that city's revolutionary veteran founders.

Student-participants were selected by their high schools. Funding for the conference is being supplied by the Gund Foundation, Cleveland, and the University. Programming is under the direction of the Ohio University history department and the Ohio American Revolution Bicentennial Advisory Commission.

Playboy bunnies given break

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Playboy publisher Hugh Hefner has rescinded some of the strict rules he established for women who work in Playboy clubs across the country because he says he wants to make "bunny lib a reality rather than just a slogan."

In a statement issued from his California mansion on Sunday, Hefner said he may have been "just a wee bit overprotective" in setting up rules that forbid bunnies from dating customers, giving out their true names or visiting clubs outside of working hours.

In rescinding those rules, Hefner also announced that bunnies would be made honorary Playboy club members.

Bunnies staged a protest in Chicago last week against what they termed archaic work rules.

Lapland knows no fixed boundaries; it extends across arctic Sweden, Norway and Finland into Russia. Archeologists have discovered that Lapps roamed the region as early as A.D. 400, according to the National Geographic Society's book, "Vanishing Peoples of the Earth."

Central U.S. under band of rainfall

By The Associated Press
Thunderstorms persisted from Colorado to Texas and in the middle Mississippi Valley today.

A band of thunderstorms rolled over eastern Colorado and western Kansas and extended into eastern New Mexico and west central Texas. Other storms stretched from southeastern Missouri, across Illinois into Indiana.

Tornados touched down in the suburbs of Chicago Sunday night. No one was reported injured, but property damage was extensive with houses and automobiles damaged and power lines snapped.

A tornado also was reported near Marfa, Tex., and hail one inch in diameter pelleted parts of Lubbock, Tex.

Thunderstorms dampened scattered areas over the central and eastern Gulf coasts and the southern Atlantic coast. Isolated showers and thunderstorms hit areas from the Pacific Northwest to the northern and central Rockies.

Refugees from the flooding Sun River in northwestern Montana began returning to their homes today although the river was not expected to return within its banks until Tuesday. Temperatures before dawn ranged from 43 at Evanston, Wyo., to 86 at Needles, Calif.

Columbus chosen as movie site

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Columbus has been selected as the site for a motion picture.

Entertainer Mickey Rooney, in Columbus for a summer stock production last week, said he and his company would spend about four weeks in the capital late this year filming "The Electric Chair."

Rooney said he hoped to use facilities of the former Ohio Penitentiary in downtown Columbus as a background for some of the film.

Summer reading conference set at Wilmington College

WILMINGTON — William M. Gordon, associate professor of education at Miami University, Oxford, will be the keynote speaker at a summer reading conference for elementary school teachers on Thursday.

The all-day conference is sponsored jointly by Wilmington College and Southern State General and Technical College. Gordon was formerly associated with the reading center at Miami University.

According to a spokesman, the conference, which will be held in the Kelly Center on the Wilmington College campus, has been planned co-operatively by Wilmington College and Southern State College in response to requests from class-room teachers for assistance with techniques they can use in their classroom.

Attending teachers will be urged to bring materials they have created for classroom use for display at the conference.

Following the morning session at which Gordon will speak, and after lunch, the conference will break into six separate groups to deal with different topics relating to reading. Each session will be repeated so that conference participants will be able to attend two during the afternoon.

Registration, which includes luncheon, is $3.50. Reservations may be made by contacting John Bryant, Wilmington College. Teachers may also register the day of the conference.

Cores of the earth, taken by the Glomar Challenger, an oceangoing drilling rig, have proved that the Atlantic Ocean is expanding by about one inch a year and is pushing the Old and New Worlds apart.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Good news for big band freaks: Highnote trumpeter Maynard Ferguson and his 13-piece band roar tonight in the finale this season of public TV's fine "At the Top" jazz miniseries.
As is the custom of the 47-year-old bandleader, the emphasis is on brass. His crew features six trumpets, including Ferguson, who curiously takes only a few brief solos during the hour-long show.
He also vocalizes — fairly well, too — on an updated version of the old Bunny Berigan hit, "I Can't Get Started With You."
But most of the program is used as a showcase for solos by various members of the band on such tunes as Jimmy Webb's "MacArthur Park"—the band's national anthem by now, Herbie Hancock's "Chameleon" and "Got the Spirit," a jazz-gospel piece by trombonist Slide Hampton.
The musicians seem to be having a ball on the show, particularly Ferguson, who first gained fame in the early 1950s as a featured soloist in Stan Kenton's big, powerful jazz bands.
It's a safe bet many of today's high school and college musicians aren't strangers to his work, thanks to the numerous concerts he plays each year and the music clinics he and his band hold while on tour.
The kids, older jazz buffs and even civilians will find a lot to like in tonight's effort, even if most of it is on the loud side and doesn't show what the band can do when it shifts to lower decibels.

A warning: While the sound engineering in the three previous "At the Top" shows was excellent, the quality in tonight's show seems a bit muddy at times, no doubt because of the tiny speaker of the TV set on which I watched the program.
The speaker was just too limited for all that went on. This is a problem with most TV sets. Why, oh, why don't manufacturers ever realize this? But viewers have two possible cures.
Run your TV set's audio through a hi-fi system—get help if you've never done it before— or call up your local public TV station and ask if it's simulcasting the Ferguson show on FM radio.

Medium-sized frog biggest jumper

POMEROY, Ohio (AP) — A medium-sized bullfrog named Mike won the Ohio State Championship Frog Jump at the Big Bend Regatta on Saturday with leaps totaling 15 feet 7½ inches.
Mike's jump was nearly four feet short of the world frog jumping record, but still sufficient to net a $500 first prize for owner John Young of Racine, Ohio.
Young, who caught Mike in a pond on his farm and named it after his grandson, said the triumphant frog will not be domesticated or eaten. "I'm going to put him right back where he belongs — in the pond," he said.
The jumping meet and accompanying Frog Derby highlighted activity at the regatta, with frogs brought in buckets, bags and shoeboxes. Anyone without a contestant could rent one for 50 cents.
Owners from throughout southern Ohio stamped, shouted, puffed and pleaded with their recalcitrant charges as hundreds looked on.
The annual contest drew more than 200 entrants. Each had 15 seconds and three jumps to coax the greatest distance possible out of his frog without touching it.
Many of the contestants have developed their own strategies after many seasons of competition.
"We always go out and catch 'em a night or two before the jump, and then don't handle them," confided one veteran frog jumper. "The more you handle them, the more they become pets and won't jump."
The junior winner was Bryan King of U.S. Army undergoes changes in 200 years

EDITOR'S NOTE — On its 200th anniversary, the U.S. Army is undergoing a rebirth as an all-volunteer force. But it is no longer an army dominated by citizen soldiers.
By FRED S. HOFFMAN
Associated Press Writer
Two hundred years ago, the Continental Congress voted to raise 10 companies of volunteer "expert riflemen" to serve for a year.
"Each company, as soon as completed, shall march and join the army near Boston, to be there employed as light infantry," Congress decreed.
That resolution, adopted June 14, 1775, was the birth certificate of the U.S. Army, which grew eventually to a peak strength of eight million men in World War II.
Over the past two centuries, the Army has fought in nine wars. Its colors carry streamers representing 163 campaigns and major battles.
For most of its history, the United States followed a policy of maintaining only a small standing army. This grew out of a latent fear, rooted in the country's European origins, that a large professional military force posed a potential threat to freedom.
At one point after the Revolution, the U.S. Army could muster only 80 men and a few officers.
Throughout most of this country's history, the concept of the citizen soldier has dominated military policy.
When war threatened, or actually broke out, the federal government turned to the states for mobilization of militia.
Sometimes this was disastrous, as in the War of 1812 when poorly trained militiamen broke and ran before battle-seasoned British troops who then burned Washington.
But militiamen also scored brilliant victories, as in the Battle of New Orleans when they humiliated British soldiers who had defeated Napoleon's best in Europe.
The Civil War, the first in which the United States fielded massive armies, was fought principally by volunteer regiments of state troops.
Between wars, the Army found itself neglected, starved for men and money, and generally relegated to remote posts and thankless duties.
The Indian wars were fought principally by a few thousand lonely cavalymen scattered across the enormous expanse of the West.

Promotions came slowly, pay was skimpy and the desertion rate was high.
Except in wartime, the professional soldier usually found himself looked down upon by many citizens as a deadbeat who could not make a living as a civilian.
For the first 125 years of its history, the Army stayed within the boundaries of the United States, except for forays into Canada during the Revolution and the War of 1812, and the invasion of Mexico in the 1840s.
But the Army found itself in the spearhead of American overseas expansion to Cuba and the Philippines in the closing years of the 19th century.
More than 75 years later, much of the Army's strength is deployed to defend Western Europe and South Korea.
Although the draft was used to a limited extent in the Civil War, the tradition of an Army manned chiefly by volunteers underwent the historic change with the onset of World War I. Many of the four million men who put on Army khaki in 1917-18 were conscripts. But even in that war, many of the U.S. divisions that fought in France were drawn from the volunteer National Guard.
In the postwar years, the United States returned for the last time to a small regular Army. It fell into disrepair. Again it was isolated from the mainstream of American life.
Things got so bad that the Army maneuvered with mock weapons in 1940, even as Germany's armored divisions were rolling across France.
In World War II, the Army reached its summit of strength and public acceptance in the United States. This also was the last time the United States came out of a war with a clear victory.
Cut back after World War II, the Army very nearly was overrun in the early months of the Korean war. In the end, the United States achieved its goal of preserving South Korea, but many viewed the result as a disappointing stalemate.
Before it was over, the Korean war became an unpopular conflict which divided the country and saw one of the Army's great figures, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, sacked by President Harry S. Truman.
But it was the Vietnam war which brought the Army its worst troubles and turmoil in modern times.
Reflecting home front disillusionment with the war, the Army was wracked with discipline, morale, race and drug problems in Vietnam, Europe and elsewhere.
Now the Army is undergoing a new birth as an all-volunteer force of 785,000 men and women. But many are professionals, and not the citizen soldiers of the 18th and 19th centuries.

WINNING FORM — Post 25 hurler Randy Gardner shows the form that earned him a two-hit, nine inning win over Waverly Post 142 Saturday at the Washington Senior High diamond. Gardner struck out 10 in the contest to lead the Court House nine to a twinbill split.

Gardner tosses two-hitter in Post 25-Waverly split

BY MARK REA
Record-Herald Sports Writer

Post 25 survived the heat and two key injuries well enough to gain a split in a Saturday doubleheader with Waverly Post 142. They took the first game by a score of 5-2 but lost the nightcap, 11-7.

With 90 degree temperatures all day, each team had to call on their reserves of stamina to finish the games. Post 25 received two injuries in the initial game of the twinbill. Outfielder Terry Rodgers was spiked in the ankle and shortstop Mark Scherer twisted his ankle. Both started the second game but Rodgers exited early and Scherer switched to first base to cut down on an excess of movement.

Randy Gardner pitched Washington C.H. past Waverly in the first game, going nine innings and giving up just two runs on two hits while walking seven batters and striking out 10 Waverly Legionnaires. Mark Trainer went the distance for Post 142, giving up five runs on seven hits in taking the loss.

Alan Connor was the hitting star in the first game, picking up two hits in three at bats and scoring two runs. He also knocked in two runs. Phil Roll also had two hits while Mark Fisher picked up an RBI.

In the second game, Waverly had four runs before anyone was out and went on to win the game, 11-7. Rob Phillips picked up three hits while scoring three runs and chasing home three RBI's.

Terry Smith got the win in relief for Waverly, pitching two innings and allowing three runs on three hits. Mike Holsinger started the game and hurled three innings before giving way to Smith. Randy Wills went the final two innings for Post 142.

Jeff Craycraft took the loss for Court House, giving up four runs in the first inning after failing to get anyone out. Connor pitched five innings, giving up seven runs on eleven hits. Jeff Green turned in the best pitching performance of the day by either team in the final two innings by striking out three and allowing no hits.

Roll had three hits in the nightcap along with three RBI's. Scherer, Connor, Craycraft, and John Ackley each collected two hits.

Roll, rain spell defeat for Chillicothe Legion

CHILLICOTHE — The heat affected different people different ways Sunday as pitching ace Jeff Throckmorton of Chillicothe Post 657 cooled off after a blistering start and Post 25 starter Phil Roll finally got warmed up to gain the decision in the first game of a scheduled South Central League twinbill.

Throckmorton threw nothing but smoke in the first six innings giving up just three Court House hits and registering most of his 14 strikeouts. The 90 degree temperatures and Post 25 bats finally got to the ex-Unioto High School hurler in the final three innings.

Roll's performance on the mound was the opposite of Throckmorton's as the former Circleville prep star gave up five early runs before tossing a shutout the last six innings.

Post 25 backed up Roll's pitching with nine runs in the final three innings to take the 9-5 win before sweeping the twinbill with a 12-8 rain-shortened second-game win.

Alan Connor provided the first big blow off Throckmorton, when he cleared the bases with a three-run double to right centerfield in the seventh.

Post 657's lanky righthander was the victim of an unearned run in the eighth tying the contest at 5-5, before the left game in favor of Mark Graham.

The little lefthanded relief specialist faced only three Court House batters before he was pulled in the ninth.

Post 25 got a two-run single from Robin Zurflue to wrap up the contest in the final frame off the second reliever Mick Shoemaker.

Roll yielded only two earned runs and struck out nine while going the distance.

Throckmorton was tagged with the loss after being charged with the go-ahead run in the ninth frame.

In the second game, Post 25 jumped out to an early 5-0 lead and went on to take the third game of the year from Post 657 in as many meetings.

Chillicothe managed four runs in the second off starter Jeff Green, who left the contest in the next inning with arm trouble.

Washington C.H. got four big runs in the fourth on a bases-loaded triple by Jeff Craycraft after a Mark Fisher RBI single.

Robin Zurflue added two more runs in the fifth frame with a shot over the leftfield fence.

Post 657 came back with three runs in the bottom of fifth setting the scene for what looked to be a high-scoring slugfest, but the weather stepped in and the game was called because of a welcome-for Post 25-cooling rain shower.

Post 25's next outing is scheduled for Wednesday evening against Portsmouth at the Washington Senior High Field.

Elliot does it again in BRL

Girton's pitching ace Jeff Elliot pitched a four-hit shutout against Sabina 1 to lead his team to a 7-0 Babe Ruth league victory Saturday.

Elliot upped his three-year league pitching record to 14-2 with the victory. He has not lost a game since July 17, 1973.

In 92 innings pitched during his career, he has struck out 121 batters and walked only 37.

Elliot gave up just four hits — all singles — and struck out nine Sabina batters.

Mike Qualls saved Elliot's shutout with a diving one-handed grab in left field.

Larry Brickles helped out on offense with the games only extra basehit. The win kept Girton's on top of the league standings with a 5-1 record.

Astros top Nolan, Reds 8-4

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astros pitcher Larry Dierker said his arm didn't feel right before the game and he was afraid he might not be around long. But he pitched the complete game as the Astros defeated the Cincinnati Reds, 8-4, and snapped a five-game Houston losing streak Sunday.

Dierker had a lot of help from his teammates as the Astros collected 15 hits including home runs by Cliff Johnson and Cesar Cedeño. They also turned in four double plays behind Dierker to help him out of tight spots as he evened his season record at 7-7.

"I felt the worst I have all year winding up," Dierker said. "My arm felt heavy. It never got loose."

"Sometimes it works out that way. When you feel great you might get knocked out early and when you don't feel right things work out."

It appeared Dierker was going to have troubles as the Reds took a 1-0 lead in the first inning when the first three men up singled. But after Joe Morgan knocked in the run, Dierker settled down and got the side out without further damage.

Johnson tied the score and started a three run rally for the Astros with his 400-foot plus home run over the center field fence in the second inning. It was Johnson's sixth homer of the season and his fourth in the last five games.

A double by Enos Cabell and singles by Rob Andrews and Greg Gross produced two more runs in the inning and the Reds never caught up.

"I come to the ball park to help this ball club," Johnson said when asked if his performance, which also a run scoring single, would put him in the starting lineup.

"It may be catching, playing first base, playing the outfield or coming off the bench. I just help anyway I can."

Cedeño hit his fifth home run of the season in the third. Gross singled in a run in the sixth and the Astros added three more in the seventh on Johnson's single and Dierker's two-run single.

Pete Rose's double and Ken Griffey's single accounted for a Cincinnati run in the third. Morgan knocked in another in the fifth with a single and Tony Perez hit his 10th homer of the year in the eighth.

Dierker allowed nine hits and struck out seven in going the route. Gary Nolan, the first of four Cincinnati pitchers, took the loss. He is now 7-5.

Expos 4-3, Phillies 0-4
Steve Rogers pitched and batted Montreal to its opening-game victory. He allowed just seven hits, singled and scored one run, then drove in two with a bases-loaded single.

In the nightcap, Greg Luzinski led off the ninth with his 16th homer for the Phils to tie it, then Tommy Hutton singled and Tony Taylor doubled to win it.

Cardinals 7, Cubs 2
Lynn McGlothen checked Chicago on five hits while Ted Simmons and Willie Davis teamed for five hits and drove in four runs to pace St. Louis past the Cubs.

Simmons homered in the second inning and capped a three-run third with a double. Davis contributed a double in the third, tripled in the fifth and ripped a two-run single in the sixth.

Pirates 2, Mets 0
Dock Ellis silenced the Mets on five hits to give the Pirates their fifth straight victory and the ninth in the last 10 games. With it they widened their East Division lead over the Phils to five games.

Dodgers 3, Padres 2
Bill Buckner opened the eighth inning with a double and, one out later, first baseman Willie McCovey misplayed Willie Crawford's grounder that gave the Dodgers their tiebreaking run against the Padres.

Astros 8, Reds 4
Cliff Johnson drove in two runs with a single and a homer, Greg Gross singled home a pair of runs and Cesar Cedeño added a homer to beat the Reds. The loss cut Cincinnati's West Division lead over the Dodgers to two games and ended Houston's five-game losing streak.

A's 7-8, Royals 6-1
Sal Bando keyed Oakland's first-game triumph, hitting a solo home run in the eighth and doubling in the game-winning runs in the 12th inning.

The A's, who now have won seven of their last eight, overran the Royals in the second game.

Oakland scored once in the first and added three in the sixth when Billy Williams followed Bando's RBI double with his ninth homer of the season—a two-run shot.

White Sox 9-6, Twins 2-5
Bob Coluccio's run-scoring double with two outs in the 10th inning snapped a four-game Chicago losing streak in the opener.

Deron Johnson hit a two-run homer and Buddy Bradford hit a three-run blast in the third inning, powering Chicago past Minnesota in the nightcap.

Orioles 3-1, Red Sox 0-5
Rico Petrocelli drove in Boston's first run in 22 innings in the fifth inning while Luis Tiant struck out 12 and scattered seven hits in the nightcap, carrying the Red Sox to a split.

Mark Belanger's scratch hit in the second inning and Don Baylor's two-run home run backed Mike Cuellar's six-hitter and gave the Orioles the opener.

Yankees 5, Tigers 3
Sandy Alomar's two-run triple keyed the three-run fourth inning that carried the Yankees past the Tigers and gave New York 17 victories in 22 games. The Tigers have lost nine in their last 12.

Indians 3, Brewers 2
Milwaukee reliever Ed Rodriguez hit Rico Carty with a pitch with the bases loaded in the 10th inning, giving Cleveland its triumph.

The Indians had taken a 2-0 lead in the fifth inning when Carty doubled, Oscar Gamble walked, Alan Ashby doubled and Gamble scored on an in-field out.

The Brewers tied it in the seventh on George Scott's two-run single.

East upsets West 23-21 in football

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — They saw a little Alabama-style football at the 15th annual Coaches All-America football game, and Texas Tech fans got a small taste of what kind of gambling game their new coach Steve Sloan plays.

Sloan, of course, was a former quarterbacking great under Paul "Bear" Bryant at Alabama. Sloan took Vanderbilt to its first bowl game since the horse-and-buggy days last year in the Peach Bowl.

Ironically, the Peach Bowl opponent was Texas Tech, where Sloan is now employed after strong soul searching about leaving Vanderbilt. The Peach Bowl score was 6-6.

Sloan made a debut of sorts in Lubbock as the East Coach in the All-America Game Saturday. The East upset the West 23-21 before 36,000 local fans and a national television audience who missed 27 minutes of action because of a power line failure.

Asked if it relieved a little pressure being 1-0 in his new hometown, Sloan gave a sly grin and said, "I don't believe the fans will count it."

West Coach Grant Teaff of Baylor said he believes a lot of fans will "count it."

Teaff, college football's Coach of the Year in 1974, said, "I don't like to lose, but in an all-star game you are always happy if no one gets hurt. The fans saw everything out there tonight ... a great game ..."

The West, now owning an 8-7 lead in this series, built up a 13-3 lead on field goals of 39 and 54 yards by Alan Pringle of Rice and a 40-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Neal Jeffrey of Baylor to Bass Francis of Oregon.

Enter Maryland's Louis Carter. He threw a 9-yard halfback touchdown pass to John Sawyer of Southern Mississippi moments after Gary Johnson of Grambling hooked the football out of West quarterback David Humm's arms and rumbled 68 yards for a touchdown.

Carter, named the game's most valuable player, ran three yards for a touchdown in the third quarter to give the East a 23-13 lead.

The bidding:
East South West North
Pass 1 ♠ Pass 4 NT
Pass 5 ♥ Pass 5 ♠

Opening lead - ace of diamonds.

This deal occurred in the match between Italy and the United States during the 1968 World Bridge Olympiad played in Deauville, France.

When Forquet and Garozzo were North-South for Italy, the bidding went as shown. Forquet took the firmest possible grip of the bidding and obviously planned to bid a slam if Garozzo had three aces.

But Garozzo responded five hearts, showing only two aces, and the bidding died at five spades, which was easily made for a score of 450 points.

The auction was considerably more active at the second table, where Robinson and Jordan held the North-South cards for the United States against Belladonna and Avarelli.

Here, when Jordan opened the bidding with a spade, Avarelli (West) doubled for takeout. This double, with a singleton heart and unfavorable vulnerability besides, was in keeping with the principle followed by the Roman pair that a singleton in an unbid suit is not a bar to a takeout double when the doubler has the high-card values for an opening bid. The bidding proceeded:

East		South		West		North
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass	3 ♥
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	4 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	Pass	4 ♠

5 ♠	Pass	Pass	6 ♠	Pass	6 ♠	Pass	6 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass	Dble	Pass	Dble	Pass	Dble

Jordan and Robinson judged the hand exceptionally well when they edged their way into six spades (down one), since Avarelli would have made six clubs. But, even so, they suffered a team loss of 550 points.

Their teammates at the first table had not uttered a peep, though they could have made a slam in either of two suits!

Surgery for Excessive Perspiration

My underarm perspiration is so profuse, even in winter, that it is ruining my life. My husband and my friends don't understand how embarrassing this is. They think that I'm overemphasizing its importance. They won't believe how this condition can affect every part of my social life. I've tried sprays, creams, lotions, drugs. Nothing helps. I'm at my wit's end.

Mrs. G.L.W., Ohio

Only those who have had such difficulty can appreciate the esthetic, the physical and the emotional problems of profuse perspiration.

The discomfort of being wringing wet, even in cold weather, and the constant awareness of the disorder can truly interfere with the joys of all social pleasures.

It has long been known that the sweat glands responsible for perspiration were concentrated in a small area high in the armpit.

About 15 years ago, a group of doctors described an operation that satisfactorily controlled this condition, known as "hyperhidrosis."

Now, a group of doctors in Copenhagen is performing this operation and has recorded remarkably successful results in the control of this most distressing symptom.

Dr. Erling Bo Andersen and a group of co-workers in Copenhagen have operated on almost 300 cases of hyperhidrosis. Both men and women were involved in this study. Most were between 20 and 45.

The operation is not dangerous. Surgeons specially trained in this technique can, I am sure, be found in major hospitals in the United States.

It may seem that an operation for the purpose of controlling perspiration is too radical a procedure. Readers must understand that this operation is reserved for uncontrollable perspiration that in no way resembles the moderate perspiration that most people have and which is so easily controlled with a variety of products.

Speak to your doctor about this. If he believes that you are a candidate for such surgery, he will help find the surgeon to perform it.

Ohio healthy for banks, experts say

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Ohio is a healthy place for the banking business, four out-of-state banks with offices in Cleveland say.

But marketing executives for a pair of Chicago banks and one each from New York and Boston maintain they aren't hurting local institutions. Instead, they claim they are providing services not offered by Cleveland banks.

John Beirise, vice president of Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Co., termed Ohio "a great state for corporate banking business."

"We've had a good reception in Cleveland and throughout Ohio," Beirise said. "What we're doing for corporate customers in the state is offering them services that Cleveland banks cannot, or do not, provide."

First National City Bank of New York, through its holding company, Citicorp., provides a loan production service in Cleveland.

The affiliate of First National Bank of Boston makes secured loans on accounts receivable and inventories. A spokesman for First Boston says its main competition has been finance companies rather than area banks.

First National Bank of Chicago has made several loans to area corporations, and is "prospecting for business" among small state corporations, according to William Burk.

Children of wealthy Belgian found; kidnappers still free

KNOCKE-ZOUTE, Belgium (AP) — A taxi driver found the 6-year-old son and 3-year-old daughter of a wealthy Belgian steel man in a telephone booth early today 26 hours after they were kidnaped from the family's vacation villa.

Police said little Hubert and Ingrid Bonnet were unharmed. The boy led the police to an apartment house in Middelkerke, near Ostend, and said he and his sister had been taken there. Police said one of the apartments had been rented by four Italians answering to the description of the kidnappers, but "the men were gone," a spokesman said.

A spokesman for the children's father, Pierre Bonnet, said there had been no demand for ransom and no contact between the family and the kidnappers after they left the villa.

Bonnet said the kidnappers were members of an anticapitalist organization. But one police investigator said he believed it more likely that they were burglars who had not expected to find the villa occupied and took the children to help cover their escape.

There was no report of any trace of the kidnappers despite a nationwide hunt and a systematic search of all public and private garages along the coast for the gray Volkswagen Beetle used by the kidnappers.

The police said the four armed, masked men broke into the Bonnet family's large villa at Knocke, on the North Sea coast three miles from the Dutch border, about 3 a.m. Sunday.

They tied up the children's parents, an uncle of Bonnet and the maid, and two of the men took the children away in Mrs. Bonnet's Volkswagen.

The other two men spent nearly three more hours loading jewelry, paintings, silverware and other valuables into Bonnet's Mercedes, then drove off about 6 a.m.

Bonnet managed to free himself an hour later and called the police. He told them all four men spoke French with an Italian accent.

Gangster summoned by probers

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Roselli, a West Coast underworld figure and associate of slain Chicago mobster Sam Giancana in a reputed plot against Fidel Castro, is being called before the Senate intelligence committee.

Roselli, who is appearing in response to a subpoena, is expected to be quizzed about reports that he and Giancana were approached on behalf of the CIA to arrange for Mafia members to assassinate Castro.

Giancana, who also had been expected to testify, was shot to death in his home in a Chicago suburb last week.

Also expected to testify is William K. Harvey, a former CIA official who reliable sources have said was involved in plots to kill Castro.

This week's edition of Time magazine said CIA officials began exploring the possibility of killing Castro in the spring of 1960 when suggestions were put forth that Castro's food or cigars be poisoned.

According to the Time account, Giancana and Roselli were approached to find a man in Havana to liquidate Castro. The two Americans, who were hoping to escape prosecution by the Justice Department, in turn recruited a gangster with access to Castro.

race tire production — to give you a tread that makes full, flat contact with the road. The well-grooved rib-type tread provides plenty of traction edges for a really decisive grip. For carefree holiday driving, get a set today.
